Faleena Hopkins ► Cocky Readers -
Cocker Bros. of ATL Series

Cocker Family: you're the first to know publicly, because you may have heard that I sued three people in federal court yesterday in relation to the harassment that's been happening to me.

On May 16, the day after Mother's Day, I called Carol Ritter of RWA and left a message on her voicemail telling her I wanted us to work together for a solution, to help me come to a compromise with this so that we can go back to reading and writing. I told her voicemail that I never meant for any of this to happen, that our readers were getting hurt, and I really wanted us to all move past it. She did not reply to me in a call or anything. Instead she sent her lawyer. And that's why I had to sue. I've been advised and it's blatantly obvious that if I don't fight I will be crushed. That's not an option.

I started this to protect this imaginary family, my readers and the future books of my series as I move forward.

If I bend to these attacks then the future indie authors who have to stand up for their creative property and their art and imaginations, will not do it because they will be terrified.

That's so wrong there isn't even a word for it.

I never did this for the money. Any money I win in
